NYSE: AQUA

Evoqua Water Technologies Corp.

If you're looking for an investment theme with strong, reliable, long-term tailwinds: water might be one of the safest bets. Everyone needs water and it is estimated that half the world's population will live in water-stressed regions by 2040. An often-quoted Goldman Sachs report from 2008 called water "the petroleum for the next century."

Evoqua Water Technologies (NYSE: AQUA) manufactures "water and wastewater treatment systems and technologies, and mobile and emergency water supply solutions and services for industrial, commercial, and municipal water treatment markets." In addition to the well established municipal, industrial, and recreational sectors that Evoqua is involved in, one currently small industry that is expected to have massive growth in the future is Aquaculture; the cultivation of fish and other aquatic life for food. Evoqua makes filters and disinfection systems that can be used in Aquaculture.

AQUA's market cap is currently around $5 Billion, with an average daily share volume of about 800,000. The company currently pays no dividend. The stock is up about 76% over the last year (as compared to about 29% for S&P500) with growth being fairly steady since the 2020 pandemic crash.

AQUA may be a strong long-term investment if the demand for water continue to rise and you want a well established company in your portfolio that is benefiting from providing solutions.
